Beware of the Bull.

Wallace's Farmer.
When the emperor of Germany was a "kid," while not only his father but his grandfather was living, and the throne was apparently thirty years distant, he sent his photograph to Bismarck, his father's chancellor, with the warning: "Cave, ad sum," which translated into plain English means: "Take care; I am here!" A most important thing for the royal cub to say. What Bismarck thought when he read the warning, nor what he felt when the threat was executed, has never been printed, perhaps would not be printable.

What was an imputent thing in a royal princeling would be the highest wisdom on the part of the farmer and his boys, as expressive of their attitude toward the bull. No matter what his breed or breeding or age or past behavior, the one animal on the farm which is never safe to trust is the bull. You may trust the cow. She will never return evil for good, unless her maternal instincts are aroused by a threatened danger to her calf; and you can't blame her for that. You can be a friend of the horse. He will trust you. The dog will even die for you. You can by kindness even allay the suspicions of the cat; but you are never safe in trusting a bull.

The only safety lies in giving him to understand from calfhood up: "Beware; I am here!" Don't let the boys play with him when a calf. Don't tease him. Never trust him. The bull has no morals, no conscience, not even a sense of humor. He is utterly incapable of gratitude.

He is like some men that we have known. He assumes that he is supreme boss of the ranch, and is ready to crush by brute force anything and everything that interferes with the gratification of his passions or of his whims. He has a low trait which he shares with men of his type, which leads him to take advantage of even his friends. Every year we read of farmers who have been gored or trampled to death by bulls, and it is always a "kind, gentle bull," that was trusted.

The bull understands and appreciates but one thing, and that is brute force. Put a ring in his nose when he is young; put a staff in the ring, and hold it, and have a club handy; and give him to understand that you are the boss of the ranch, and not he. If he has learned to use his horns and to depend upon them, dehorn him. Be just to the bull; never abuse him; but let him know always and everywhere that you are on the spot, that your will is supreme, and that peace between you and him depends on his good behavior.

When in life you meet with coarse-grained, stupid men, with no conscience, no code of morals and no sense of humor, soothing with passion for power or revenge, treat them not as you would your own bull, but a strange bull—keep away from them. Never under any circumstances trust a bull. Never fear him, but with ring and staff and club make him fear you, fear even your shadow.

The June Woman's Home Companion.

In the June Woman's Home Companion appear a number of letters and one or two articles containing valuable vacation ideas and suggestions. Among the titles of special interest in this connection are: "Ways and means of Taking a Vacation"—a collection of letters from various contributors; "Two Foreign Larks in Two Weeks," in which Albert Lee makes a practical suggestion of a trip to St. Pierre on the islands of Miquelon and to Nova Scotia—a trip which can be made by two people in two weeks at a total expense of $124.60; "Ideas for Summer Girls," by Companion readers; and "The Best Nature Books," in which Laura Spencer Porter makes suggestions for reading for June.

Of course many other articles are included in the number, such, for example as "To the Girl Who Wants to Sing," in which Putnam Griswold tells why so many girls fail, who is to blame, what kind of talent is really needed, and where to study to win success; "The World's Greatest Paintings," by Laura Spencer Porter; "The Friends of Better Babies," by Anna Steese Richardson; and "The Safe Ice Box," by Walter Peet, a physician.

Fiction is contributed by Mary Heaton Vorse, Molly Elliot Seawell, Fannie Heaslip Lea, Temple Bailey, Georgia Wood Pangborn, Clarice Vallette McCauley and Margarita Spalding Gerry.

The regular Fashion, Cooking, Housekeeping, Home Decoration, Puzzle, Tower Room, Young People's, and About People departments complete a fresh and attractive number.

ACKNOWLEDGE IT

Lexington Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Endorsements Prove It

After reading the public statement of this fellow-sufferer given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy of which proved so beneficial years ago, with the kidneys can naturally be expected to perform the same work in similar cases. Read this:

H. C. Berryman, retired farmer, Plattsburg, Mo., says: "I had pains in the small of my back and they bothered me, especially when I was stooping or lifting. My back ached at night and I was lame in the morning. I tired easily and had headaches and dizzy spells. The kidney secretions passed too frequently and there was sediment in them. I had to get up at night to pass the secretions. I used Doan's Kidney Pills for these ailments and was benefited. The statement I gave recommending them before, I can confirm today."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

REAL PAINT ECONOMY

Masury Paint Costs Nothing

IT'S the old, old, story—saving at the spigot and leaking at the bung.

Some people think it is Economy to buy second grade paint for their house. They figure by the gallon instead of by the year. They ask "how much does it cost," instead of "how long will it wear."

On a basis of actual Wear and Service and Protection for your property MASURY paint really costs nothing. It saves more than it costs. It lasts twice or three times as long as paint that costs a few cents less a gallon.

MASURY'S is real paint Economy. Its record of 77 years is worth considering. We strongly recommend MASURY paint to the man who is looking for Service. The printed formula on the label is the best evidence that the makers aren't afraid or ashamed of their product.

Any man who has ever bought MASURY paint can tell you that it wears and wears and wears.
